

WATCH AND TICKET.

The report of the baseball commission in charge of the sale of tickets for the Daytona game, made last evening, was most disappointing, showing a shortage of 213 tickets of the 500 lot which the association maintains must be sold before Daytona can count on summer baseball. Little less than half of the allotment have been sold, which puts the matter squarely up to those fans who have not as yet purchased tickets.

Many fans are still of the opinion that the entire amount of $33 for the season ticket has to be paid in cash. This is not true. Arrangements may be made with directors of the club for carrying the amount, to convenience the purchaser, the club needing the money in the bank when the season opens, and the promise to pay, but not necessary must have all the cash on hand.

If unable to pay cash for the ticket, make arrangements now to take care of one or more, but do it now, that the number may be swelled within several days, or the chance to purchase tickets will be gone, and summer baseball in Daytona will be but a memory.

WILL 1923 BE YEAR
OF GREAT FAMINE?

The year 1923 may be "destined to repeat something like the experiences of 1315, the year of the worst and most general harvest failure known in European history."

England gets this prophetic warning in the magazine published by the Royal Economic Society of London.

The prophet is Sir William Henry Beveridge, famous economist.

As far back as two years ago he began predicting the possibility of "lean years" in 1924, 1925 or 1926.

Now he moves the date up a year and points to "1923 as likely to be distinguished by excessive rain, cold and bad harvests in western Europe and to bring high prices and scarcity in 1924."

Beveridge hasn't been consulting a ouija board or clairvoyant.

For years he analyzed wheat prices from the year 1500 onward. He found that wheat prices run in cycles, the peaks recurring at intervals of 15-13 years.

Barring the big war that comes about every 50 years, when the people have saved up enough to finance it, wheat-price peaks are the result of crop shortage, generally due to bad weather.

Bad weather, unfavorable to crops, seems to repeat every 15-13 years, almost as accurately and unfailingly as the striking of a good clock.

The year 1800 had one of these bad-weather cycles, accompanied by a severe crop failure and famine. Next in line for large-scale disaster is the year 1923, according to Economist Beveridge. He doesn't guarantee his prophecy. What he wants is that farmers and students of economics put their thinking-caps on.

Pharaoh had a dream. Joseph interpreted it correctly. Seven years of plenty were followed by seven lean years. That gave a period of 14 years, remarkably close to the 15-13 years cycle discovered by Beveridge.

During the fat years, Joseph and Pharaoh stored up surplus grain and sold it during the seven years of famine.

Farmers might ponder this: Maybe a benevolent providence has been swamping us with bumper crops, to enable us to store the surplus for lean years in Europe or even in our own country.

"And the famine was over all the face of the earth; and Joseph opened all the storehouses, and sold unto the Egyptians; and the famine waxed sore in the land of Egypt. And all the countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn; because that the famine was so sore in all lands."

Tony Primiano opened 1,278 oyster in an hour, winning a contest at Warren, R. I. He claims the world championship. As far as we're concerned, he can have it. Anyone who has ever tried to open even one fresh oyster's powerful jaws will admit that Tony has speed and this his fingers must be powerful enough to pull a spike out of an oak plank. The oyster contest, however, would make most of us yawn if we participated. What is it that makes people interested in so many different things? And what sort of contest interests you most? Probably it is closely allied to the thing that'd bring you greatest success.

THE TRUE
STORY of the KU KLUX KLAN(Copyrighted)
BY COL. WINFIELD JONESCHAPTER I
FIRST CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION OF KLAN

State, county, and city elections in the South in 1870, when the white population was engaged in taking control of government from the carpetbaggers, and control of State Legislatures was seized by the whites, who ousted negro state senators and representatives, caused much turmoil and excitement south of the Mason and Dixon line. The Ku Klux Klan participated largely in these elections and was a potent factor in overthrowing carpetbag and negro rule. There were many affrays at the polls, and the Ku Kluxers, as well as other Southern men, used the six-shooter and the shotgun as a method of direct persuasion at many election places. The negroes were intimidated and prevented from voting in hundreds of places and the carpetbagger, if he insisted upon participating in elections was terrified by open threats of violence, which often culminated in shooting affrays. In this year the whites really regained control of their own political affairs in the South.

Professor Walter Henry Cook, of the Western Reserve University, of Cleveland, Ohio, in his "Secret Political Societies in the South During the Period of Reconstruction," says: "The Ku Klux accomplished much. From a political viewpoint it secured home rule for several of the Southern States. It ended the disgraceful rule of the carpetbaggers therein, and it helped to reestablish honest and efficient governmental institutions. This example was an inspiration which, after 1872, soon led the men of the Southern States, still in radical control, to the glorious victory in regaining self-government."

"From an economical standpoint, the negroes were frightened into going to work and were prevented to a extent from breaking labor contracts. These were important services in the rehabilitation of the South."

"From a social standpoint, the Klan protected property, protected life, and brought order out of chaos."

Woodrow Wilson, War President of the United States, in his "History of the American People," says:

"Adventurers swarmed out of the North, as much the enemies of one race as of the other, to cozen, beguile and use the negroes. The white men were aroused by a mere instinct of self-preservation until at last there sprung into existence a great Ku Klux Klan, a veritable Empire of the South, to protect the Southern country."

Many accounts of the election disorders were published in the Northern newspapers, and much excitement and resentment over the situation existed in the North. Northern newspapers of that period bitterly denounced the Southern people and their election methods. Finally Congress, responsive to the agitation and Klan propaganda in the North, which was directed more at the Ku Klux Klan than at the Southern people as a people, on April 20, 1871, passed the Ku Klux Act. Briefly described, this law authorized the President to suspend the writ of habeas corpus in order to effectively deal with the Ku Klux Klan and the other brotherhoods, which were termed "conspiracies," and it enlarged the powers of the Federal courts.

A congressional committee was appointed to investigate "Klan affairs in the late insurrectionary States." Subcommittees of this committee visited the South and accumulated a great amount of evidence which fills 13 volumes, copies of which repose on dust-covered shelves in the Congressional Library. The investigation had important results in two ways. From it the Ku Klux Klan was brought to realize the danger to their Order and similar organizations by interference of Congressional committees instigated in the North. The investigation convinced Ku Klux members who had not believed upon continuing the Klan organization that it would be best to dissolve the Klan, and those Southern white men who had advocated dissolving the Klan were encouraged by the Congressional committee. The result was that the remaining Klan organizations in nearly every section were dissolved.

The Ku Klux Klan had officially ceased to exist, previous to the congressional investigation, however, by proclamation of the "Imperial Wizard," General Forrest. The imperial edict was issued in March, 1869 when the Klan was dissolved.

Prior to the passage of the Ku Klux Act, Congress, spurred on by the activities of the Ku Klux Klan, and encouraged by the clamor in the North against the Klan, passed on May 31, 1870, the "Enforcement Act." This was planned to protect the rights of citizens to vote in all elections "without distinction of color or race." The act conferred upon United States courts the authority to punish persons guilty in disguise upon highways, or who operated disguised for the purpose of intimidating or preventing a citizen exercising his electoral rights. The old "Civil Rights Act" of 1866 was incorporated in the new enforcement act, and the principal provision of the 1866 law was to be enforced by the Federal courts. In 1871 Congress passed a supplementary Enforcement Act which strengthened the Enforcement Act of May 31, 1870. President Grant called the attention of Congress to the disorderly conditions at elections in the South, and the Ku Klux Act was then passed. The crux of the Ku Klux Act was that where unlawful conspiracies, such as the Ku Klux Klan was considered to be by the Republican majority in Congress and the Grant Administration, existed, the writ of habeas corpus could be suspended by the President and he could use the military and naval forces of the United States to enforce the act. The Ku Klux Act was in fact a bestowal upon the chief magistrate of arbitrary power of the army and navy to put down disorders in the South. It was, of course, aimed principally at the Ku Klux Klan. The enforcement of this legislation, where Federal troops were employed at the polls in the South, almost caused an other armed insurrection and led to continued agitation and acts of violence between Southern men and Federal soldiers.

Enforcement of the Ku Klux Act and the Enforcement Act caused more disorders than before, and the legislation did not result in the suppression of the Ku Klux and similar orders because the Ku Klux as an organization had already ceased to exist. In 1869 by the edict of the "Grand Wizard." The law in some sections brought a veritable reign of terror. Prominent citizens who were under suspicion of being Ku Kluxers or sympathizers of the organization were of ten seized arbitrarily by orders of military commanders and thrown into jail, where they remained without trial, and where they were kept at the whim of the Federal authorities.

In 1881 the United States Supreme Court declared unconstitutional interference by Congress with elections in the South. The damage, however, had already been done, and the effect of the law, which the Southern people believed oppressed them politically and socially, only had the effect of rendering more stubborn the resistance to Federal authority and the soldiers by the Southern white man. It further consolidated and strengthened the "Solid South" as a political entity.

Reputable historians are now agreed that it was a mistake on the part of Congress to attempt to coerce the South, and it was also impolitic for any power to attempt to cause the Anglo-Saxon race in the South to become submerged under a black political wave. The real roots of the Ku Klux Klan can be traced back to those qualities of the Anglo-Saxon race, existing both in the North and the South, which forbade amalgamation of the white blood with an inferior race, and the possession of a spirit which was determined to be dominant in government at all hazards. Had conditions been reversed the Northern people undoubtedly would have acted exactly as did the South.

In 1872 Congress passed an act restoring the right to vote and to hold office to the former Confederates, and it was not long before the able white leaders in the South had taken direction of all political affairs in that part of the country. The disorderly conditions gradually disappeared, Federal troops were withdrawn, and the South really began her political recovery. The era of reconstruction ended. Sentiment in Congress and the North against the Ku Klux Klan and the terrible political and social conditions which prevailed in the South prior to 1870 was not all one way, and opinion as to these conditions and concerning the Ku Klux Klan was divided in the North. This is shown by the fact that the Congressional Committee which investigated the Ku Klux Klan presented majority and minority reports. The majority reports set forth that a Southern conspiracy of a political nature existed against constitutional law and the negro race. The minority report stated that misgovernment and exploitation of the South by reconstruction officials had provoked the natural resentment and resistance of the people of that section. Thus the carpetbagger and the negro legislature were officially condemned by a congressional committee, though in a minority report.

Before the passage of the Ku Klux Act there had been many stirring debates in Congress concerning Southern conditions. These, carried by the press, served to educate Northern people to the real conditions in the South.

After 1872 agitation concerning the Ku Klux practically ended. A better feeling began to prevail in the South. The North too, realized the disadvantages under which the Southern people had labored, and the two sections once divided by a fratricidal strife began to have a more friendly feeling.

The Spanish-American War, in 1898, reunited both sections and performed the final act of reunion which again welded the Republic into a cohesive whole. The son or grandson of the man who wore the Confederate gray, who marched and fought and died by the side of his "bunkie," a grandson or a son of the man who had worn the Union blue, both fighting to free the Cuban, both fighting to strike off the shackles of Spanish tyranny from a helpless people, and an oppressed but alien race, did more to unite the North and the South than all the reconstruction laws passed by Congress and all the agitation since 1865.

In Washington, D. C. there is a Camp of the United Spanish American War Veterans in which one of the most honored and active members is a Confederate veteran.

The World War further brought the men of the North and the South and their descendants together, and today the United States knows no North and no South, no East and no West. We are all one glorious American family.

But one result of the bad old reconstruction days exists today, at least politically, and this is represented by the "Solid South," which probably for many years to come will always be a Democratic "bloc" opposed to the Republican Party.

The Harding Administration has been making sustained and energetic efforts to break up this Democratic "Solid South" and to establish a real Republican Party south of the Mason and Dixon line to include the best white citizens. Some progress has been made, but not enough to forecast that the Democratic "Solid South" will ever become Republican, at least not in this connection. The prejudices and bitter memories of reconstruction days still exist in the South, and it is for this reason principally that the Southern white man remains a Democrat, though his economic advantage could be secured by allegiance to the Republican Party.

Endicott Secures Entry of a Score of Fast Cars for the Racing Program Monday

The way in which entries are coming in for the automobile racing program for Monday afternoon, February 13th, is evidence that one of the greatest racing events ever staged on the Daytona Beach speedway will take place on this date. The interest that is being shown in the coming event is manifested by the letters that have been recently received and by famous drivers who have declared their intention of coming to place their fortunes on the track. This event in itself will create considerable interest in Daytona Beach as it will be Miss Neville's first appearance on the famous speedway and it is a well known fact that she is one of the most spirited and dare-devil drivers of the dirt track.

The events of this race will be conducted on the percentage and point system, that is the first event will be 15 points, second event 20 points, third event 25 points and the fourth event 40 points and fifty per cent of the gate receipts will be divided for prizes on the basis of seventy and thirty per cent for the first, second and third events. The fourth event prize money will be divided as follows: first prize sixty per cent, second prize twenty-five per cent, third prize fifteen per cent. The fourth race will be a free for all, will permit any type of car with no limit of displacement.

There will be two barrels at either end of the course, one will be a warning barrel one-eighth of a mile from the turning barrel at the end of the course. The judges stand will be midway of the course with the pits for all racing cars immediately at the South. The entire course will be carefully fenced off with ample guards to patrol the fence and take care of properly parked automobiles. The admission will be 50c per person including War Tax, which admits automobile. The tide will be right for the occasion giving the broad beach the entire afternoon and the gates will be open at 12 o'clock noon and the meet starts promptly at 2 o'clock.

A change of the entrance fee to a forfeit fee has been made. The $10 cash deposit must be made as formerly by all entrants and will be returned to all those who participate in the events. The entries will close Monday noon at 12 o'clock. Bill Endicott will return Wednesday and remain at the beach until after the races, giving his personal attention to the important matters in connection with making the Feb. 13 events the greatest ever held in the beach.

It is most gratifying to the management and officials of the Association to see the interest that is being taken in this racing meet and the magnitude of popularity to which it has attained. Letters are being received daily from all parts of the country with inquiries as to the requirements for entries and cars showing that the publicity given the Triple Cities through this Association has served its purpose. The writer today has been in receipt of letters from Charleston, S. C. and Louisville, N. C. asking entry requirements for racing cars.

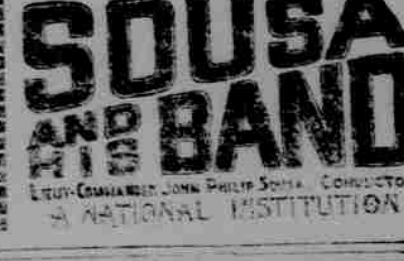

It is hoped that the Association will sanction the retaining of a thoroughly experienced man as Bill Endicott of dirt track fame, to continue with the good work of promoting sport events on the Daytona Beach speedway. Mr. Endicott is just beginning to reap the results from his missionary work for this Association, giving in broad rays publicity.

It is felt that the Association will grow to the extent of being able to put on some of the greatest sport events of high class standard that the country has ever known in the various tournaments, under sports and various hand contests together with the main feature of automobile racing. With the cooperation of the citizens of the state of Florida and the Triple Cities it can be accomplished. The untiring efforts and hard work of the members of the Association are certainly bringing results such as no other than public spirited citizens can accomplish. Now that each and every citizen considers it his personal duty to do all in his power to make the racing meet of the 13th day of February, one of the greatest sport events on the Daytona Beach speedway, a crowd of fifty thousand spectators is not far off.

"Bible in National Life" Topic of Talk

By Dr. Morgan

"The Bible in National Life" Such was the topic of Dr. C. Campbell Morgan at the Baptist Church in the evening session of the East Coast Bible Conference Monday. It was a carefully selected topic and one which is of great importance to the people of this country. The speaker, who is one of the most thoughtful and able of the present time, pointed out the importance of the Bible in our national life and the need for a permanent prosperity and peace.

He went on to show in a most convincing manner that civilization has come to every land in that degree in which the Bible has been taught, and that the spirit and teaching of the Bible is wrought out in National life and the service of uplift and blessing.

He said that a nation made of the Bible, that we had, would be a nation that would be a blessing to the world. The Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength.

He said that the Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength. The Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength.

He said that the Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength. The Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength.

He said that the Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength. The Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength.

He said that the Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength. The Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength.

He said that the Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength. The Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength.

He said that the Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength. The Bible is the foundation of our civilization and the source of our strength.

Cobb to Talk On "Fifty-Fifty" at Auditorium Soon

Irvin S. Cobb, with his inimitable drawl and his two hundred and fifty pounds of joviality is to talk on "Fifty-Fifty" here in the near future.

Cobb is a national institution—just like baseball and pumpkin pie. He's as big as all outdoors, and in every thing he says he reflects unerringly the real American spirit.

It is rather hard to describe a Cobb lecture. It is simply "Cobbesque." The general verdict is that he is funnier in his platform work than in his writings. Hundreds of thousands of magazine and newspaper readers will testify that he is "some screamer" in his literary work.

Cobb is an old newspaperman like President Harding and dozens of other national figures. He used to be a "club reporter" and in those days he was as serious minded as any young reporterial upstart in any newspaper office in the country. In fact, he took things too seriously at first, and all of a sudden he began to see things in a humorous vein. Then began his career as a "funny man" and he developed fast—mentally and physically.

Today, the familiar by-line, "By Irvin Cobb," is seen in the metropolitan dailies all over the United States, and his stories appear regularly in such magazines as The Saturday Evening Post, American, Life and many others. One secret of course of Cobb's success is his ability to keep his fingers on the pulse of the American life. He is one of the best informed men of the day. He has been considerably in politics, as an in-need bystander, of course, but he sees situations which are entirely missed by many of the other leading writers of the day. At the last National Convention Mr. Cobb was very much in evidence, and his humorous picture of the process of making presidents were published from one end of the country to the other.

The announcement of his appearance here is creating considerable comment and the newspaper boys promise to be in the front row when Cobb tumbles out before his audience to deliver his latest lecture entitled, "Fifty-Fifty" broadside at the world's return to "Normalcy."

Body of Little Boy Is Sent to Auburn Today

The remains of little Robert Kiekok, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Kiekok, who died Sunday morning in Seabreeze, were sent to Auburn, N. Y., this morning, accompanied by the bereaved parents. The largest-Wehr, City Cal. undertakers, had charge of the body.

Robert was three and a half years old and had come to Seabreeze three weeks ago for treatment, accompanied by his parents. He had been sick since last March.

Georgia was the last of the thirteen original colonies to be settled.

Bird Imitator of Note Coming to Auditorium

Higher by two octaves than the voice of Tetraxini is the voice of Charles Crawford Gort, who reaches even an altitude greater than that of the hummingbird in those imitations of bird song which are an interesting feature of the lecture he will give on Friday at 8 at the Auditorium.

Mr. Gort is first of all a lover and student of birds. At the age of eight he began to imitate bird songs. At eleven he had evolved a method neither whistling nor singing, but producing the notes in the mouth and varying them with lips, tongue, throat and diaphragm by which he has deceived even mother birds into bringing him worms in answer to the food cry of their young.

He is a well known authority on birds and bird life, and illustrates his happy talk on man's feathered friends. "The insect eating birds," he says, "alone stand between man and starvation." He illustrates with paintings of the birds and reproductions of about 60 bird songs.

Other magical artists have insured their hands. Mr. Gort has had a dental surgeon make an accurate plaster cast of his upper and lower jaws so that in case of injury to his teeth they can be accurately reproduced, that further bird singing will be possible.

While he talks with the authority of science upon birds and their songs, Mr. Gort's lecture is so packed with human interest that it is of interest even to those city dwellers whose knowledge of birds is limited to the English sparrow. He is an eloquent and ready talker, and his lecture here will prove of unusual interest.

This is an Assembly number.

FINAL DECISION ON GENOA CONFERENCE ANNOUNCED FRIDAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The administration's final decision on whether or not to participate in the Genoa economic conference will be announced at next Friday's cabinet meeting. It was stated officially today at the White House.

It is understood that the cabinet discussed at considerable length today the question of American participation, and it was learned that there has been no change in cabinet sentiment against the United States sending delegates to the Genoa meeting.

BELIEVED CONGRESS WILL NOT PROVIDE FOREIGN DEBT FOR THE BONUS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Confidence was expressed today in the highest administration circles that congress would not provide for the use of foreign debt bonds to raise money to pay a soldiers bonus.

President Harding was reported as being in full accord with Secretary Mellon, who holds that it would be futile to authorize the use of such bonds to pay a bonus before the securities were actually in the possession of this government.

MAN FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH TODAY IN BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 7.—George A. McQueen, clerk for the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, was found frozen to death early this morning in a vacant field at Fourth Avenue and North Thirtieth Street.

Although the body showed no marks of violence other than badly skinned shins on both hands, Coroner Hargrove stated today that he believed the man was probably first knocked down by some one with whom he was engaged in a fight. Exposure to the cold weather Monday night and Tuesday morning and the fact that the man's feet were lying in a pool of water caused him to freeze to death before he could regain consciousness, is the belief of both police and county authorities.

JACKSONVILLE MAY SUBSTITUTE A SOFT WATER PLANT SOON

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 7.—Plans to supply this city with soft water to supplant its present artesian supply are under consideration by the city commissioners.

Suggestions have been heard that the Suwannee river be tapped while other plans would obtain the water from Kingsley's Lake, Sand Hill, Lake Black Creek, St. Mary's river and other sources. The practicability of softening the present supply has also been considered, but opponents of this method argue that the artesian supply is slowly diminishing and that in time the city will have to look to other sources anyway.

Jacksonville's water supply has long been the conversation, at least, in most sections of the city the supply is served through a filtering plant where the sulphur has been extracted. In the sections not so served, however, the presence of sulphurated water is easily noticeable. Some newcomers describe it as having a decidedly unpleasant odor, while the cabalists of language say flatly that it carries the stench of over-ripe eggs. The housewife complains that it blackens the silverware. The conservative old-timer argues in return that the water is beneficial to health.

In the meantime, the newcomer, excepting the women-folk who find readjustment more difficult, becomes accustomed to the water.

Neither are the women to be satisfied with the supply in the sections where nature's intentions are thwarted by the filtering plant. Although shorn of its sulphur, the water is still hard and injures the hair, they assert. Instead of glossy strands, the coiffure becomes colorless and coarse, according to current gossip.

Recapitulated to catch rain water are quite the fad among the younger set, while the hair-dressing establishments advertise as an asset the fact that they use water from above rather than beneath.
